Unified Command Is Vital

Without it U. S. May Enter Another Emergency, General Tells the Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(P)—General Eisenhower said today that unless the armed services are placed under a unified command "we may enter another emergency, in a time to come, as we did at Pearl Harbor."

The European theater commander told the Senate military committee in prepared testimony that "this nation must preserve a balanced, adequate measure of our land, sea and air power lest we lose the peace we have so dearly bought."

In World War II, he said, the United States had to achieve the change from joint to unified command "the hard way." He added:

"I know that our efforts would have met with failure without unity of direction. No system of joint command could possibly have brought victory to our cause."

Nimitz to Testify

Shortly before Eisenhower testified, Senator Hill (D-Ala) said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific navy commander who flew to Washington for a naval conference, would appear before the committee Saturday.

Nimitz is expected to attempt to refute Eisenhower's statements since the navy bitterly opposes any merger of the armed forces.

Eisenhower said unity of land, sea and air forces under his command "was not easily achieved."

He added that he thought the "difficulties grew directly from the traditional separation of the army and navy which is the inevitable outcome of the present organization of our military departments.

"Separation at the top necessarily fosters separation all along the line."

Reply to Criticisms

Replying to what he said were criticisms of the unification proposal, Eisenhower went on:

"I am told that the task of the civilian secretary, who would preside over such a department, is beyond the capacity of any man. If this were true, then it follows that no man has the capacity to assume the presidency of the United States."

As to statements that creation of a single department would subordinate one service to another, he commented that the result in Africa and Europe "proved such fears to be groundless."

To arguments that Germany had a single military department and yet lost the war, Eisenhower replied:

"The facts are that Germany never had such a single department or even unity of direction except in the führer himself."

On the contrary, the Luftwaffe was commanded by Reichsmarschall Goering, who was second only to Hitler, and the successive chiefs of the German general staff were never able to achieve anything approaching unity of direction of the three components of the Nazi fighting machine.

"One of the major contributing factors to the Nazi defeat was the utter lack of unified direction over the Luftwaffe and the wehrmacht."

Getting Ready For Christmas

At a meeting of the retail merchants of the Chamber of Commerce, held this morning in the Chamber headquarters, it was voted to have street decorations for the Christmas holidays. C. A. Miller was appointed chairman of a committee to decide on the kind of decorations and Santa Claus event and Harry Naugle chairman of a committee to raise finances for same. These two chairmen will pick their own committees.

The group voted to keep their stores open until 9:00 o'clock December 20, 21 and 22, and to close at their regular hour, 5:30 o'clock in the evening on December 24.

It was also decided to have their stores closed all day Monday, December 31.

Ray Jiedel, chairman of the Retail Merchants committee, presided.

Pearl Harbor Witnesses

Rear Adm. T. R. Inglis (left), chief of naval intelligence, and Col. Berhard Thielin of the army general staff make their appearance at the Senate caucus room, Washington, D. C., where they will be the first witnesses to testify before the joint Pearl Harbor investigating committee. They were called to acquaint the committee with the physical picture of Pearl Harbor.

Merchant Shipping Convoyed In Pacific 12 Days Before P.H.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(P)—sel for the investigating committee.

Paragraph Cut Out

Inglis testified that as a result of these suggestions he had cut out a paragraph which he said suggested "that the nation as a whole was not unified before Pearl Harbor." He said he thought this had contributed to lack of preparedness on the part of the army and navy.

"Do you think the people were to blame for Pearl Harbor?" Ferguson demanded, noting that President Truman had made a somewhat similar statement in releasing army and navy reports on their investigations of the disaster. "My opinion is that that did contribute somewhat to Pearl Harbor," the witness replied.

"Let's call Tojo," Gearhart said to reporters. "He'd be glad to testify." Hideki Tojo, as premier, ordered the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor—for which he is awaiting trial as a war criminal.

What prompted Gearhart's remark, he explained, was that Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis and Col. Berhard Thielin, first witnesses in the inquiry, "weren't even there."

At San Francisco to route all merchant shipping on a southern route and to "provide necessary escort."

Inglis testified copies of the order went to Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander in chief of the fleet at Pearl Harbor, and others.

In a series of rapid-fire questions, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) established that at least two convoys were on the Pacific in the week before the Japanese attack.

He asked Inglis if any German submarines or surface vessels were in those waters and the admiral said he thought not.

Heavy Cruiser Convoying

Inglis testified that the heavy cruiser Pensacola was convoying eight ships west bound. He did not mention the makeup of the other convoy.

Ferguson asked Inglis to obtain information on the whereabouts at that time of the cruiser Boise, which the Michigan senator indicated he thought was convoying number of ships, including the merchantman, American Leader.

Sen. Ferguson questioned Inglis about the preparation of his statement before the committee yesterday. Inglis gave them what he described as a factual account of the actual Japanese attack.

It developed that some portions of the original draft of the testimony had been deleted by Inglis at the suggestion of the navy judge advocate general's office and after consultation with coun-

Mum's the Word on Car Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(P)—Mum's the official word today on when price ceilings for new automobiles will be announced.

The OPA, studying fresh cost information submitted by dealers, is declining to crawl out on any more limbs with predictions about the long awaited announcements.

Price Administrator Chester A. Bowles had said ceilings for some makes of cars would be disclosed next week.

He cancelled that plan to take a good look at dealers' new arguments that they can't absorb any price increases granted to manufacturers.

It was the second postponement in a week.

Meanwhile, don't-quote-me officials of the agency are saying they'll be surprised if there is any announcement before next week.

Mrs. Shull Is Killed When Hit By Train

Fatal Accident At Rail Crossing On Engineer Avenue

Mrs. Mary Lona Shull, 65 years old, was instantly killed at 7:28 o'clock Thursday night when struck by Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 11, the Colorado Eagle, at the Engineer avenue crossing. Her daughter, Mrs. Lena Barber, and her two children, with whom Mrs. Shull resided at 809 East Fourth street, had gotten across the railroad tracks, seconds before the accident occurred.

Mrs. Shull and Mrs. Barber and children had been visiting with another daughter, Mrs. Pearl Little, at 419 North Hill street. They had left the home of Mrs. Little a few minutes before the accident occurred.

The two children, Benny Lee, 7, and Joyce Marie, 5, confirmed their mother's statement regarding the accident. Mrs. Barber told Chief of Police Anson Finnell, that her mother was walking along the sidewalk behind her and the children. She said the children were a few steps in front of her and they had just gotten across the tracks when they saw the approaching train.

"I yelled at mother to stop, but she kept coming and was almost across the tracks when the train struck her," Mrs. Barber said.

"Grandmother was almost out-of-the-way, when she got hit," Joyce Marie interrupted.

Was "Waving Frantically"

Paul Guidry, engineer on the train, who lives in Kirkwood, told the police he saw one woman on one side of the tracks waving frantically, and he noticed the woman who was struck going south. He said the woman was in the middle of the second tracks south of the main line and that she hesitated, then ran forward in a stooped position and never looked up. When I saw she wasn't going to stop, I immediately applied the emergency brakes, but we were going too fast to come to a dead stop, and it appeared as if the pilot beam on the right side struck her.

"We stopped in the yards and I walked back with Conductor J. H. Huff, Kansas City, who was in charge of the train, to make a report and investigate," Guidry concluded.

Other members of the train crew were: D. A. Renfrow, fireman of St. Louis; J. H. Cramer, 1405 South Prospect avenue, Sedalia, ticket conductor; and Whitley Woodson, Jefferson City, brakeman.

Mrs. Shull's body was hurled through the air nearly 125 feet west of the crossing and about 25 feet to the south, only a few feet from the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad main line. The body was last year army requirements, labor shortages, and other wartime factors kept the turkey from many civilian dinnerboards. The military demands, much smaller than last year, already have been filled this year through set-aside orders which were lifted in September.

Suggests Sharing

Dr. Cliff D. Carpenter, Institute president, said more of the large toms are available for civilian consumption than last year. He suggested that small families who cannot obtain lightweight birds buy "split" turkeys. Large toms often prove too big for one family to be said, but sharing the white meat between two families works nicely.

Prices stand near ceiling in some areas despite the increased supplies. Turkey hungry consumers are buying the birds as they come to market, Carpenter declared, instead of waiting for the holidays.

The Chicago retail ceiling price for all grade A dressed young birds, all weights, stands at 53 cents a pound. For the drawn turkeys, prices range from 63 cents a pound for the lightweight birds to 59 or 60 cents a pound for heavies of 16½ pounds or more.

Prices throughout the rest of the country vary within a cent or two of Chicago costs.

In most areas, an abundance of chickens also was reported. The army has stepped out of the chicken market and more birds are going directly to civilian channels.

Turkeys to be Plentiful for Thanksgiving

Prices Stand Near Ceilings In Some Areas

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—(P)—Tom Turkey, absent from many of the nation's holiday festive boards in wartime, will be available in large quantities as the piece de resistance for the first peace-time Thanksgiving dinner in four years.

There are millions of turkeys—this year's enlarged crop totaled 44,150,000—and there will be plenty available in almost every section of the country for next Thanksgiving.

Snyder's figure represented a scaling down from previous estimates that up to 50,000 workers were involved in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas and part of Wisconsin.

Lou Hoskins, secretary of the midwest truck operators association, which represents trucking companies in those states, said the unions had refused to negotiate, but Snyder ascribed the walkout to a "breakdown in negotiations for a new contract."

Service on 75 truck lines operating west and north out of St. Louis, including 25 with headquarters there, was halted by the strike. Shippers said considerable quantities of freight were tied up at St. Louis terminals.

Strike Ties Up Trucking

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 16—(P)—

A union business agent said today a strike of AFL union drivers had tied up over-the-road trucking operations in eight midwest states.

The official, Fred Snyder, business agent for general drivers and helpers, local 544, Minneapolis, estimated that about 20,000 workers were affected. The strike became effective at midnight.

Snyder's figure represented a scaling down from previous estimates that up to 50,000 workers were involved in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas and part of Wisconsin.

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Here is one important tip-off showing the administration knew war was coming in the Pacific, but expected it in the Philippines. . . . Adm. William Glassford, commanding U. S. gunboats in the Yangtze patrol, carefully shepherded his fleet out of Shanghai across tempestuous seas to Manila. They were flat bottomed boats, dangerous in rough, deep-sea weather, but, knowing the Japs were about to strike, he made the emergency trip just before Pearl Harbor. . . . At that time everyone expected the Japs to strike the Philippines, the

JAPAN'S OBJECTIVES

NOT only were the European partners of the Axis unable to coordinate their plans and resources and agree within their own nations how best to proceed, but the eastern partner, Japan, was working in even greater discord. The Axis, as a matter of fact, existed on paper only. Eager to capitalize on the preoccupation of the western powers in Europe, Japan was so greedy for her own immediate conquests that she laid her strategy, not to help Germany defeat Russia and Great Britain, but to accumulate her own profit. Had the way been open, Germany and Japan would have undoubtedly joined their armies in Central Asia, but to Japan this objective was secondary to looting the Far East while there was no real force to stop her. The War Department General Staff's analysis of Japanese objectives follows:

"The Japanese, for many years, bolstered by a fanatical belief in divine guidance and their own spiritual and military supremacy, had planned the domination of the Far East and eventually the world. Japan in her inland empire was not self-sufficient. She required broader land areas and access to oil, rubber, and other raw materials if she were to become a major industrial world power. This principle of expansion was outlined in the 'Tanaka Memorial' purportedly a secret memorandum prepared for Hirohito by the Jap Premier in 1927. Authentic or not, it provided the pattern which Japan has followed, culminating in the great Pacific conflict.

Time Was Ripe

"Strategically, Japan was well poised in 1941 to carry out her aims in Asia. All the major world powers who normally maintained the status quo in Asia were absorbed in the war in Europe.

make them dissatisfied with CIO leadership. Also, they are likely to help precipitate a strike, and Lewis knows from his own sad experience in the recent coal strike that strikes right now can be most unpopular with the public.

Naval War-Tug

A terrific backstage battle is raging between the admirals over who will replace Admiral King as chief of naval operations. The combat admirals want Adm. Chester Nimitz. They saw him operate in the Pacific. Admiral King himself is pushing Adm. Raymond Spruance, also an A-1 man. Secretary Forrestal is supporting Admiral R. S. Edwards, now deputy chief of naval operations and leading promoter of navy imperialism. . . . The first trial of the Kansas Kingfishers begins today when the head of the Kansas State police faces a jury—Judge Helvering doesn't postpone it. . . . Last week Gen. Lucius Clay, No. 2 boss of Germany, announced publicly that U. S. authorities in Naziland have asked for an additional $30,000,000 worth of food for the German people. Yet, on October 16, in a secret meeting of American generals, General Clay stated privately that the U. S. zone has a special reserve of 300,000 tons of food which it did not want to use until American public opinion favored jailing the Germans. . . . Jesse Jones, the man whom Franklin Roosevelt kicked out of the cabinet, is now the man who really runs his old job of federal loan administrator—backstage. President Truman has closed his eyes to it, but Jones's position in Washington today is just about as powerful as ever. He operates from Room 450 in the Statler hotel and his phone is so busy that not even his wife can reach him. . . . If you want to buy a jeep, a truck, a factory, an oil refinery or some old tires, it's Jesse Jones's old outfit which handles it.

Little Business Break

Hard working Attorney General Tom Clark has written a confidential memo to the White House advising that the smaller war plants corporation cannot be gobbled up by the commerce department and Jessie Jones's old RFC without an act of congress. . . . This is a break for little business. . . . The smaller war plants corporation has been doing a real job for the smaller businessman, also had won prestige on Capitol Hill. . . . John Snyder, the small town banker, now war reconverter wanted to transfer it by executive order without congressional okay. In fact, the executive order was already drawn up when this columnist broke the story, following which the problem was referred to the attorney general. Assistant Secretary of Labor Carl Moran is another of the A-1 public servants deserting the administration. He is going back to Maine, from whence he came, despite White

77th Fought Japs On all Big Fronts

By NEA Service

Three years to the day after Pearl Harbor, doughs of the 77th (Statute of Liberty) Division made an amphibious landing behind the main Japanese defense line on Ormoc Bay, caught the Japs completely by surprise, and, in savage battle which followed, broke the back of the enemy defense of Leyte.

Gen. Walter Krueger, Sixth Army Commander, in commenting on the daring nature of the operation, admitted that, had it failed, it might have turned into an "American Dunkirk."

But the Statue of Liberty men did not fail. They captured Ormoc, hub of the Nip defense, in three days, and pushed on against tough opposition to join other elements of the X Corps. Organized Jap resistance ended with this junction and on Christmas Day, 1944, the island was declared secure.

Veterans now of Leyte and Guam (which the division cleaned out in 21 days of hard fighting) the 77th could have been excused for thinking it had seen Pacific fighting at its most vicious. But the worst was yet to come. The 77th was committed to the fiercest and bloodiest battle of all—the fight for Okinawa.

The men absorbed the roughest concentration of Jap artillery fire in the Pacific War on Okinawa. Facing them was Shuri, central fortress of the Jap defense line on southern Okinawa. Countless ridges, bristling with Nip defenses, stood in the way of the high ground commanding Shuri. The doughs, working with tanks, flame throwers and dynamite charges, finally blasted the enemy out of his holes, but at a heavy cost.

BECAUSE these gray flannel slacks with matching waistcoat have all the precise tailoring of men's, they have been called the "King of Slacks." French pleated in front and fitted in back to eliminate bagginess, they give a streamlined look to the figure. Best of all, they are scaled for small, medium and large sizes.

Scripture: Acts 11:19-30; 12:24-13:4; Ephesians 4:11-16.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
"Outreach" is a good word for the Christian church. It began in outreach; it spread to the ends of the then-known ancient world; and in every age when the life of the church has been active and true to the spirit of the early church and its Founder, outreach, missionary enthusiasm and activity, has been its deepest characteristic.

Jesus reached out for His first disciples. He did not take those nearest at hand, or those among the officially religious, to whom a religious leader might naturally have appealed. He reached out into the common life, and took fishermen and others of lowly, but very active, occupations to be of the inner circle.

He wanted workers, and those who would be fishers of men—reaching out and gathering others into the Christian way. He organized the twelve, and sent 70 others along with them out into the villages, reaching out, always reaching out. Christianity is a religion of the outreach.

Even if, following the death, resurrection and ascension of their Master, the disciples had not been ready and willing to obey the Master's command to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, events gave them little choice. The persecution that broke out scattered them, but they had learned well the Master's lesson, and everywhere they went they proclaimed the truth and won disciples.

And then came Paul, ardent, indefatigable traveler, always pushing out into virgin soil, with a world-vision of Christ's kingdom, and a determination that every part of the world should know the good news of the gospel. The Christian outreach was personified in this amazing man.

Trader Horn wrote that David Livingstone was more wont to say, "Let us march," than "Let us pray"; but it was a libel against the great missionary explorer, for whom Christian faith and prayer were as much his inspired life as marching. And Livingstone was only one of many, exemplifying in these modern days the outreach of the church.

And now the church is at the parting of the ways, faced with a great opportunity and responsibility, or with the most tragic failure conceivable. The world, war-stricken and broken, lies before us and all around us, its remotest part accessible in what was but a day's journey in ancient times. The world needs as never before the saving, healing, purging power of Christianity and the church; and the church, if it will, can meet that need as never before. Will the church—that is the people in it, you and me—fail, or will it manifest in new and powerful ways the outreach in which the church began?

Human Relations

The secret of good human relations is mutual understanding and forbearance. This is demonstrated in the harmony between married couples who make sensible allowances for inevitable differences of outlook and temperament. It is shown in the friendly spirit between employers and workers who are ready to sit down together and iron out problems in which both recognize they have a common responsibility.

Our lives can become more pleasant and congenial if we adopt the same attitude that no matter what we think or feel about some particular issue, we should seek to understand the viewpoint also of those who disagree with us. If we cultivate the ability to see things through another person's eyes, we guard against the danger of unjustified suspicions, quick resentments and exasperations, hardening into long-standing bitterness and strife.

This calls for a spirit of Christian humility, a virtue that is lacking in many otherwise admirable persons. Being humble does not imply that we should allow ourselves to be bullied or "pushed around" without defending ourselves or to be maligned or slandered without raising voices in protest. It does mean that we should have the strength of character, the good sense, not to let resentment over real or fancied grievances take root in our souls. It means at the least that we should take into account all the circumstances of the offense committed against us before evaluating its seriousness.

Not just "turning the other cheek," but remembering always that the Christian law demands that we love even those who offend against us is the best insurance for happy human relationships. We should remember that even our bitterest enemies can be vanquished by the weapons of love.

Would Not Confer Degree

Criticism On Reported Attitude Of The President

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 16—(AP)—The Baptist general convention of Texas Thursday leveled criticism at President Truman for what it asserted was his attitude toward gambling and drinking.

The convention, on motion of the Rev. L. L. Roloff, Corpus Christi, instructed trustees of all Texas Baptist colleges and universities not to confer an honorary degree on persons holding "to such a position."

The resolution: "Because of the reported attitude of the President of the United States as a Baptist toward gambling and drinking and because of the invitation of Baylor university to confer upon him the high recognition of a honorary degree, I move that we instruct the trustees of all our colleges and universities not to confer any honorary degree on those holding to such a position."

The resolution was adopted by the convention without opposition.

At Waco, Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor, replied "no comment" when told of the resolution.

The Rev. W. L. Shuttleworth, Houston, chairman of the civic righteousness committee, said no to the convention floor:

"I know that we all agree that no man—even the President of the United States—could be a good Baptist and drink his liquor."

Some Of Comment

(At Waco, Tex., Dr. J. T. Harrington, chairman of Baylor trustees, commented: "I think the action of the general convention is an infringement by a general body on the inherent personal rights of Baptists as individuals and on the rights of Baptist institutions.

"Each Baptist church and institution is a law unto itself. The institutions are governed by the trustees and the general convention has no right to instruct the trustees as to what they should do. The convention can change the trustees but not instruct them what to do."

In Washington there was no immediate comment from the White House.

The Rev. Forrest Feezor, pastor of the Broadway Baptist church of Fort Worth and newly elected first vice president of the convention, said the resolution was not discussed and was acted on quickly.

"I believe that most Baptists would agree with the intent of the resolution in general," he said, "but I believe that if they had

Go About Far As They Can Go'

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16—(AP)—They've gone about as far as they can go..."

That's the theme song of California's 1946 collection of swim and play clothes, being shown this week to visiting fashion editors from all sections of the United States."

The well-dressed woman, in the California theory, is the undressed woman, who is not afraid to bare her epidermis to the sun and who exposes midriff, back, arms and legs with perfect sang froid and telling effect.

Cole of California repeats his "swoon suit" success in many fabrics—that's the little number worn by practically every woman in America last summer, with the tied bra and the skin-tight shorts laced up the sides. Many innovations are shown in the 1946 line, but the swoon suit continues to lead the parade.

Catalina presents a "whistle suit" in blue and white striped glazed chintz with diaper draped shorts and a drawstring bra. It's so named, explained its designer, because the boys always whistle when they see it.

Find Treasures Of Eva Braun

Costly Gems And A Large Sum Of United States Money

FRANKFORT, Germany, Nov. 16—(AP)—Eva Braun's treasure chest was found Thursday and American intelligence discovered

ed beneath its hoard of jewelry and money dozens of photographs showing family pictures of her and Hitler and a mysterious baby girl called "Uschi."

Hitler, it seems, was quite generous with Nazi loot to the woman, who is believed to have died with him in the gloom of the Berlin chancellery while Berlin burned.

The pictures of the baby were in Eva's personal album.

The treasure trove contained the woman's diary, which employed every other sentence to tell of "my undying love."

Thousands of dollars in American bills in varying denominations and a brooch set with 50 diamonds and valued at $15,000 were found. The prize treasure, however, was an 18th century silver set bearing the royal emblem of the Polish crown and valued by American officers at between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Precisely where the treasure was found is still a secret; American intelligence officers hinted that the full story was not yet told. Information leading to the discovery was obtained in a routine investigation.

There had been various reports that the couple had at least one child, although British intelligence investigations concluded that Hitler and Eva Braun were married only the day before they died.

Eva's pictures showed Hitler and the blond "Uschi" in many poses, from infancy until the little girl appeared to be about three years old in the last snapshots taken in 1944.

Another of Eva's prizes in the treasure chest was the uniform Hitler wore on the fateful July 20, 1944 when an attempt was made on his life.

Gen. 'Ike' Is For Youth Training

Declares To Congress It Is Imperative For Safety Of Nation

By TOM REEDY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(P)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told congress today there is hope for perpetual peace, but America should keep her young men trained for war lest she be left "defenseless and naked before a future enemy."

A year's peacetime training for every youth of 18 is "imperative" for the safety of the nation, the five-star European commander testified to the house military committee.

"If I didn't have hope for peace I wouldn't be here—I would have jumped out of my plane over the Atlantic," the general declared.

But, he said, hope isn't enough. The next aggressor will smash first at the United States from far away, he said. "We will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory."

Britain Never War On U. S.

Eisenhower wouldn't say who he thought the next aggressor—if there is one—might be. In answer to questions by Rep. Thomas (R-N.J.) he said:

Britain will never go to war against the United States.

Russia has "not the slightest thing to gain" by attacking this nation and moreover "I'm convinced her policy is one of friendship with us."

In support of President Truman's request for universal military training, Eisenhower told the house military committee:

"I believe Russia's policy is friendship with the United States. There is in Russia a desperate and continuing concern for the lot of the common man and they want to be friends with the United States."

The general said he knew that some Russians are concerned over criticism of the Soviets by the United States press. But he added "it is difficult" for Russians to understand a free press as it operates in the United States.

His references to the possibility of war with Great Britain or Russia were made in response to questions by committee members, principally Rep. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.) who asked:

"Who do we have as potential aggressors?"

No Nation Would Challenge

Eisenhower would not specify any nation because he said he could not foretell international developments adding that years ago none thought we would be at war with Germany or Japan.

Right now, he said, "There is no one nation in the world that can challenge a prepared America."

"The greatest single motivating force for world peace today is the organized military potential of the United States," Eisenhower declared.

In testimony prepared for an appearance before the house military committee, Eisenhower cautioned that the development of war techniques would give the United States no time to prepare if it were attacked again.

"With the introduction of atomic and electronic warfare and the astounding advances being made almost hourly in aerial warfare, the tempo is increasing in geometric progression," Eisenhower asserted.

"If war come to us again the fact seems inescapable that we will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory."

"Certainly it would be unconscionable to gamble on a fortuitous recurrence of the time to prepare bought by the blood of our Allies in 1917 and in 1942."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(P)—According to dealers' demands, the OPA today again postponed announcement of price ceilings for new automobiles.

The postponement, the second in a week, is to permit OPA to examine new financial information submitted by dealers to the house small business committee, the agency said in a statement.

Mrs. Shull Is Killed When Hit By Train

Fatal Accident At Rail Crossing On Engineer Avenue

Mrs. Mary Lona Shull, 65 years old, was instantly killed at 7:28 o'clock Thursday night when struck by Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 11, The Colorado Eagle, at the Engineer avenue crossing. Her daughter, Mrs. Lena Barber, and her two children, with whom Mrs. Shull resided at 809 East Fourth street, had gotten across the railroad tracks, seconds before the accident occurred.

Mrs. Shull and Mrs. Barber and children had been visiting with another daughter, Mrs. Pearl Little, at 419 North Hill street. They had left the home of Mrs. Little a few minutes before the accident occurred.

The two children, Benny Lee, 7, and Joyce Marie, 5, confirmed their mother's statement regarding the accident. Mrs. Barber told Chief of Police Anson Finnell, that her mother was walking along the sidewalk behind her and the children. She said the children were a few steps in front of her and they had just gotten across the tracks when they saw the approaching train.

"I yelled at mother to stop, but she kept coming and was almost across the tracks when the train struck her," Mrs. Barber said.

"Grandmother was almost out-of-the-way, when she got hit," Joyce Marie interrupted.

Was "Waving Frantically"

Paul Guidry, engineer on the train, who lives in Kirkwood, told the police he saw one woman on one side of the tracks waving frantically, and he noticed the woman who was struck going south. He said the woman was in the middle of the second tracks south of the main line and that she hesitated, then ran forward in a stooped position and never looked up. When I saw she wasn't going to stop, I immediately applied the emergency brakes, but we were going too fast to come to a dead stop, and it appeared as if the pilot beam on the right side struck her.

"We stopped in the yards and I walked back with Conductor J. H. Huff, Kansas City, who was in charge of the train, to make a report and investigate," Guidry concluded.

Other members of the train crew were: D. A. Renfrow, fireman of St. Louis; J. H. Cramer, 1405 South Prospect avenue, Sedalia, ticket conductor; and Whitley Woodson, Jefferson City, brakeman.

Mrs. Cramer's body was hurled through the air nearly 125 feet west of the crossing and about 25 feet to the south, only a few feet from the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad main line. The body was badly mutilated.

Dr. Kenneth Holdren, coroner, was out of the city and Chief of Police Anson Finnell on orders of Judge J. V. Kesterson of the county court, ordered the body removed from the scene of the accident. The body was taken to the Gillespie funeral home and later to the Ewing funeral home.

Mrs. Barber is the wife of Pfc. Byron Barber, United States Marines, who is in the Southwest Pacific area, an employee on leave from the Democrat-Capital, who had been in Okinawa.

In testimony prepared for an appearance before the house military committee, Eisenhower cautioned that the development of war techniques would give the United States no time to prepare if it were attacked again.

Situation In China; Strife Still Acute

Communists Rip Up Parts Of Rail Lines To Interior

CHUNGKING, Nov. 15—(P)—Partial Chinese sovereignty over Manchuria was restored by the Russians today as both sides in China's civil war maneuvered for position in strategic Shantung province to the south.

An official dispatch said the Russians turned over postal and telegraphic services at the Manchurian capital of Changchun to Chinese authorities, whose troops still are blocked from the long Japanese-dominated area by Chinese Communists.

The official account added that under the agreement—one of those sought by Chungking in its attempts to reoccupy Manchuria ahead of the Communists—the Russians would be allowed to use the facilities until they withdraw, probably some time next month.

There still was no word on the outcome of Russian-Chinese negotiations for permission to fly Nationalist troops to Changchun.

But while the Manchurian situation took a more favorable Nationalist turn, the Chinese Communists struck swiftly in the rich coastal province of Shantung.

Slash Rail Lines

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported they ripped up sections of the railway leading into the interior in an attempt to seal off thousands of Nationalist troops landing from the sea at the big port of Tsingtao.

Travelers returning from Tsinan told Bergholz the capital was under virtual siege, with Communists controlling routes leading into the city and the population and garrison running short of food.

These sources said the Japanese 47th division and several mixed brigades, still not disarmed, guarded Tsinan's outer defenses while the Nationalist garrison of 20,000, mainly former puppet troops, were in reserve.

The Chinese New China Daily News leveled a new series of unconfirmable charges of alleged American intervention today, including these:

That America was sending 1,000 tanks to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, that America would train 10,000 men for China's air force, and that 100 American-manned tanks were heading for Shantaiwan, fortress guarding the southern entrance to Manchuria reportedly captured by Nationalist troops.

The Daily News also declared that Secretary of War Paterson's statement that United States forces would be used in China only to protect American lives and property was "not truthful."

It renewed charges that American forces already had participated and said if the Americans withdrew "there'll be no American lives to protect while as for American property, it is negligible and needs no protection."

"We stopped in the yards and I walked back with Conductor J. H. Huff, Kansas City, who was in charge of the train, to make a report and investigate," Guidry concluded.

Other members of the train crew were: D. A. Renfrow, fireman of St. Louis; J. H. Cramer, 1405 South Prospect avenue, Sedalia, ticket conductor; and Whitley Woodson, Jefferson City, brakeman.

Mrs. Cramer's body was hurled through the air nearly 125 feet west of the crossing and about 25 feet to the south, only a few feet from the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad main line. The body was badly mutilated.

There were 127 dealers, manufacturers, jobbers and salesmen in attendance at the session. Two years have elapsed since the association held a convention, due to wartime curtailment, but a regular convention is anticipated for next year, in Sedalia.

The resolution:

The resolution was adopted by the convention without opposition.

"At Waco, Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor, replied "no comment" when told of the resolution.

Sedalian Had Many Unusual Experiences

AMM 2/c John Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams, 702 Wilkerson street, is on the seaplane tender U. S. S. Barataria, of which the following article appeared in a Shanghai paper.

"The seaplane tender U. S. S. Barataria, anchored off the coast of this teeming city, is a typical American navy ship that made an Allied victory possible over Japan. Ships like this one never reach could be compared to our historic deeds but just plod along their course, going about the business of winning the war and often encountering serious action that could be compared to our historic and brave ships of World War II.

"Commissioned at the Lake Washington Shipyards, Houghton, Wash., the Barataria, AVP-33 joined the American fighting navy on August 13, 1944. Since that time this small seaplane tender has undergone bombardment from Japanese shore batteries, shelled and knocked out pillars and last, but by no means least, weathered two typhoons.

"The month of September was typhoon month for the Barataria. The first day of the month saw her crew "riding out" steady wind velocity of over 100 knots. This lasted 2 hours while the ship was enroute from Manila to Okinawa.

"Typhoon number two hit on September 16 while the ship was in the vicinity of Okinawa. This lasted only a little more than 24 hours but found the ship "standing on her head," rolling as great as 58 degrees at some points.

"Five-hundred pound bombs bounced off the bulkheads were cushioned by cartons of cigarettes; heating engines forced the engineers to slow to about one-third speed; and at the height of the storm the engine room started taking on water faster than the pumps could remove it. Additional pumps and manpower were rushed to the rescue as all hands knew what it would have meant if the water reached the generators.

"Barataria's boys now feel that they are capable of weathering anything that the dangerous Pacific has to offer after her debut in the cyclonic proportions of 140 miles an hour and the sea rearing its roaring waves as high as 130 feet."

Largely Increased Yields Of Corn By Topsoil Dressing

Results of Experiments

One inch added to the depth of the topsoil adds 4 bushels to the annual yield of corn per acre. One inch washed away lowers the corn yield by the same 4-bushel margin.

So found the Soil Conservation Service and the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station in four years of carefully recorded experiments.

Parts of the same field and slope were mapped according to the varying depths of topsoil. Corn was grown year after year and was harvested each year according to measured depths of topsoil. The average results of the four years indicate that greater depth of the surface soil up to 12 inches means a gain of 3.96.

Sgt. Marie Buso Writes Parents Of Visit To Shrine At Lourdes

Sgt. Marie Buso, in the Women's Army Corps, overseas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Niebel Buso, 321 East Harvey street, wrote an interesting letter to her family on her tour of Lourdes, France, which follows in part:

"Have just returned from a tour to Lourdes, France—suppose you remember that movie, 'The Song of Bernadette,' that is the place we visited, the shrine of the Immaculate Conception. The Grotto, or the niche where the Virgin appeared, is exactly as it was shown in the picture and all the surrounding country is very much alike. The town is as picturesque, too, bridges, hills and the people have changed only a little. We were fortunate in having lovely weather while there, the middle of October.

Joined a Tour

"There were around only four from our detachment, but after we arrived in Paris we joined the tour. Had a special train consisting of sixteen coaches. There were around 375 in the group, quite a large number of enlisted men, officers and nurses. All the women and most of the officers had coaches which were a little better than the wooden bench coaches. All in all travelling might have been worse and we did enjoy the scenery.

"After leaving Paris we stopped in Toulouse where we had lunch and did a little sightseeing. Of course anything that is less than one thousand years old is comparatively new, so we really saw some ancient buildings and other interesting things, and the more we saw and heard, the more thankful we were that we were only passing through.

"We arrived in Lourdes about nine o'clock in the evening and were welcomed by the army chaplain, who had made it possible for army personnel to make the pilgrimage.

Throng of People

"I can't begin to tell you of the throng of people who stream through the gates into the grounds where the church and grotto are. While we were there they had a procession at 5:30 and one at 8:30.

Wayne Hoehns Writes Of The Youth Camp At Shelby, Mich.

Editor's Note: The following is a story written by Wayne Hoehns after attending the American Youth Foundation Camp, Shelby, Mich., in 1945. Wayne, a member of the Brushy-Ringen 4-H club was Missouri's representative to this camp. He was selected because of his fine leadership displayed in 4-H club work, in community activities and good citizenship.

If I were to write a description of the train ride to the American Youth Foundation camp, Shelby, Mich., including the scenic views, Lake Michigan, and all the other things I saw, I would be far astride of the most important things I got at this camp.

There were the better traits of personality at the base of all leadership of the camp. It was not the fact that I had gone such a long distance and seen so many interesting things that made the camp so interesting; but it was the fine group of boys from all over the United States that I had the privilege to associate with.

They came, many at least, bearing merits of good citizenship. They were boys who could be trusted. They were boys with whom you enjoy association.

The leaders of the camp were another important part of it. In all of their earnest efforts and true profound statements, they made it their duty to produce leaders from "green" material as I would call it.

Individual Thinking

Now the third element that made up the camp was ourselves.

There were the better traits of personality at the base of all leadership of the camp. It was not the fact that I had gone such a long distance and seen so many interesting things that made the camp so interesting; but it was the fine group of boys from all over the United States that I had the privilege to associate with.

They came, many at least, bearing merits of good citizenship. They were boys who could be trusted. They were boys with whom you enjoy association.

This is only one example of the many thousands that have come out of Camp Minicawana and I assure you, if it be the will of God, many more lives will continue to be enlightened from the light that shines from Camp Minicawana.

Gen. "Ike" Is For Youth Training

We must be prepared on May—the day the enemy strikes—or we may never be prepared to avert defeat at the hands of any aggressor who uses against us the weapons of the future."

Eisenhower contended trained manpower and technological advancement are "our greatest assurance of keeping the peace for which we fought."

Should Train Youth

Upon expiration of selective service, the general said, the nation should be prepared to start training young men who have had no military training.

Although veterans of this war constitute a trained reserve, he said, "we must keep it constantly and currently reinforced by younger increments trained in all the most advanced techniques which research and development in the technology of warfare" are bringing forth.

"We must train them to avert World War III, not re-fight the World War II," Eisenhower said. Added the general:

"I feel sure that no true American would be willing to take on his own shoulders the awful responsibility for actively prohibiting all training and thus leaving our country defenseless and naked before a future enemy armed with the weapons of that day."

Eisenhower said that in his position overseas he was intimately familiar with the attitude of other United Nations leaders toward the armed forces of the United States.

This familiarity, he said, "assures me that in their minds there exists no fear of our motives in keeping ourselves strong."

The readiness of the United States to meet any threat of aggression, said Eisenhower, is "essential to the success" of the United Nations organization.

Dismiss One In Slaying Case

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 15—(P)—The state of Michigan dismissed its murder charge against one man in the slaying of Alberta Rose Young, wife of an army air forces officer, and charged the killing to a second man today.

Edward Bellm, 46, former Detroit police lieutenant and fellow war plant worker of the 35-year-old victim, was accused in a justice court warrant of the fatal shooting the night of last Oct. 30. The charge was first degree murder.

A similar charge against Lawrence Theis, 29, who was also a fellow worker of Mrs. Young's in a Detroit factory, was dismissed. Justice of the Peace Luther Green acting in both instances, set Bellm's examination for 11 a. m. to tomorrow.

The body of Mrs. Young, a bullet wound in the head, was found in the Clinton river near here Oct. 31. She was the wife of Capt. Franklin Young, who was in France at the time of her death and hastened here on leave.
